A CARD.—IN ANSWER TO A COMMUNICATION A that appeared in last week's United States Argus, apart from the company that I have the honor to command, I claim, in justice to myself, the privile honor to command, I claim, in justice to myself, the privile honor to command. I claim, in justice to myself, the privile and the property of one of the ex-members of my command, and one that had served for some twenty years in the corps, not only in credit to himself but in honor to the company; and, by his amiable disposition and strict adherence to military discipline, had gained the love and admiration of his fellow-soldiers, and as such they honor his name.

Now, to the point:—J. L. Waugh, having some peculiar facility through some person, usoless and wrong to name, became acquainted with this facts of my ex-member's death at an earlier hour than it was possible for me to learn. True, as stated in the communication, he (J. L. Waugh) called at my place of business. There he was told that I had gone to the asylum, to see if the member was dead. There he learned that I had sought to attend to my duty as Commandant of the Tomphine Blues, and his, as a member of another company ceased, and submit the funeral arrangements to me and my command: but, on the contrary, went holdly on, as he states in his communication to Major Craw-Jud to prove the online necessary funeral arrangements in the funeral date of the invitation to my company to attend the funeral on the following day, signed, Waugh, New York, April 6, 1833.

Capt. Brason: Dear Sir,—The funeral of the late Lieut. Thomas will take place from 451 Hudson street, to-mercy. 1833.

Capt. Besson: Dear Sir,—The funeral of the late Lieut.

Thomas will take place from 451 Hudson street, to-merrow, at 2 o'clock, P. M. The Tompkins Blues are particularly invited by Mrs. Thomas. In haste, respectfully.

WAUGH.

at 2 o'clock. P. M. The Tompkins Blues are particularly invited by Mrs. Thomas. In hasto, respectfully, WAUGH.

P. S.—The body will be bronght down this afterness.

And again, to show the warm appreciation the Tompkins Blues entertained for their brother soldier when I tompkins by assessment and other resources, the company actuality as the strength of the properties of the properties of the strength of the comfort of the children she had at that time. And again, I regret that the company is nos in possession of any receipts for the disposition of that fund. But it is useless to comment upon that subject. I have yet too much confidence in the honesty of the treasurer of that fund to doubt other than the proper disposal of the donation. I simply mention these facts because circumstances have transpired between J. L. Waugh and the company which have induced members of the command to ask me many unpleasant questions. Once more upon the subject of the funeral, I am not willing to submit to projudiced minds, but will submit to military gentlemen and military rules. J. L. Waugh did not hesitate to say to me, and in presence of my First Leutenant, Miller, the strength of the company of the company to me, and my redicted minds, but will submit to military gentlemen and military rules. J. L. Waugh did not hesitate to say to me, and in presence of my First Leutenant, Miller, the strength of the company to muster in any creditable force upon the form of the properties of the funeral in the strength of the company to muster in any creditable force upon the formy other citizen a right to come forwer the body of the lamented brother soldier until Sunday, and tender to the Independence Guard an invitation to honor the mournful occasion with their presence, as the deceased, when living, always expressed a desire that they should act in conjunction with the Blues, should be be called by stated facts was so furthered on, and at the time I received notice of the hour of the funeral, J. L. Waugh, on the part of the formas, stated that it was her desire that the death of the house and the following the secret until he was placed of the house of the ho

The Gardner Trial.

TESTIMONY OF CAPT. ABBOTT. WASHINGTON, April 18, 1863. In the Gardner case, to day was occupied in the emmination of Col. E. W. Abbott, who accompanied Dr. Gardner and Capt. Slocum to Mexico, in November last. He described his journey to Laguinillas, his visits to the mines in that region, identified the mining deed, &c., substantially corroborating the testimony of Capt. Slocus sum. He identified the letter he wrote to the Commission in answer to their advertising an offer of a reward for the mines; also, their reply and his rejoinder; and his object was to get the reward; and in the course of the cross examination it turned out that Gardner did not personally point out his mines, because he had been instructed by his counsel to hold no communication with the commissioners.

ANOTHER MURDER-RAILROAD ACCIDENT. PHILADELPHIA, April 18, 1853. James O'Neil last evening stabbed George W. Solley, in a fracas at Cedar Grove, in the upper part of the county, killing him instantly. O'Neil was committed to prison at Jennings' Tavern. O'Neil had a difficulty with Solley in the barroom. The landlord separated the parties, when Solley went into the yard. O'Neil laid in wait, and stabbed Solley twice in the breast, as he came out. Solley turned to escape, when O'Neil stabbed him twice in the back, causing his death in a few minutes. The quarrel is supposed to have been a religious one, O'Neil being a Catholic and Solley a Protestant. The Coroner held an inquest this SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—Yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, a German named Alcase Moke, of Pennsylvania. was run over by the Newark train, near the Deep Cut, and both of his legs were severed, one above the knee, the other below. He stepped upon the track after the train from Philadelphia had passed, to avoid a down train, then approaching, when he was struck by the Newark cars. He was conveyed in a state of exhaustion to the New York Hospital.

Interesting from Mexico. NEW YORK, Sunday Even

Six-Having arrived by the Black Warrior, I beg to give you some particulars which perhaps may interest

We left Verz Cruz by the R. M. steamer Avon, on the 6th inst., at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, reaching Havana on the 10th, at 9 o'clock in the morning. She carried about $2,500,000, and eighty-five passengers.

On the 12th, we started from flavans at 9 o'clock in the morning, reaching this port to day, at the same hour, and should have been here at least twenty four hours soorer, if it had not been for a gale which struck us near Care Hetteres.

near Cape Hatteras.

The Black Warrior proved herself to be a first rate sea boat, and her captain is not only a perfect nautical man, but at the same time a gentleman, which fact I acknowedge with the greatest satisfaction.

Referring to Mexican affairs, I have to report the arrival of Santa Anna at Vera Cruz, and am happy to say that he entertains very liberal ideas; at least, so he expressed himself, as well in private as in public, stating that he is entirely in favor of a lower and more liberal tariff, raising the prohibitions, as the country cannot of ford any longer to lose several millions, in order to pro-text a dozen of manufacturers; who have become mono-polists and smugglers; that he will favor any enterprise in railroads, do., and was very corry that the one com-mensed before he left had nearly remained stationary, notwithstanding the large sums squandered away on its partial construction.

notwithstanding the large sums squandered away on its partial construction.

He left on the 6th inst. for on ref his country seats, and within a few days would proceed to the capital to take the reins of government.

If he only sets up to his promises, the country will be well off; but it is much to be feare 2 that such may not be the case; as the influence of the manufacturing (or rather smugding) class is very considerable.

It is to be regretted that he should be possesse for animosity towards the American people, so much so that he would not have their money to build railroad with.

A treaty concerning the Tehrantener husiness were animosity towards the American people, so much so that he would not have their money to build railroaks with.

A treaty concerning the Tehuantepez business was signed by the Mexican Government and Judge Conkling, and is now on its way to Washington, by way of New Orleans. If this treaty suits the interest of this country, time will show.

Mr. Sloo, the contractor, appears to have some difficulties with his co-partners, the nature of which has not exactly been ascertained, but it appears that the privilege was pledged to some mercantile firm, on account of advances, without the agreement of said partners.

So far the low tariff cannot be said to have been of much good, but of course the time has been too short to find out what may be the probable effects, although merchants are unanimously of opicion that it will save the country, by keeping the treasury well filled, and enable the government to stop the smuggling trade, and at the same time make such arrangements as will tend to some stability, a thing hitherto unknown in Mexico.

It is true that the principal article, which was as good as prohibited, our grey domestics, leave no profit now, although paying three cents instead of ten cents exacted before, but this exactly proves to what exteut the smuggling trade was carried, and that the expenses must have been less than three cents a vara. There is no doubt, that shortly, say six months, those stocks will be consumed, and then, no doubt, prices will rise in such a manner as to turn out to good account, giving sufficient protection to the manufacturers of the country at the same time.

The Avon carried $2,500,000; and all the exports of a manner as to turn out to good account, giving sufficient protection to the manufacturers of the country at the same time.

The Avon carried $2,500,000; and all the exports of Mexico to England, as well as the principal imports from there, would be carried by steamers via New York, if only a proper line of steamers were established between this port and Vera Cruz, to connect with one of the principal laverpool lines, and by such an arrangement, also nearly all the passengers, and the greatest part of the correspondence might be secured, as nobody is satisfied with the English line.

It would be worth while for American capitalists to give a serious thought to this transaction.

Exports are at high prices in Mexico, and will be so for some time to come.

Cochineal is worth $25 per 25 lbs., and the next crop will be a short one. Indigo if readily sold at from 4 a $\frac{1}{2}$ reals per lb., and as the bales are mixed of many qualities, severe losses must accrue to the shippers Goatskins are worth 8 a $\frac{1}{2}$ reals fair, being in the hands of a very few hilders. Of vanilla beans it is now ascertained beyond any doubt, that the present crop amounts only to about one half of last year's, for which, therefore, has been paid 150 per cent higher than the former; $\frac{3}{2}$ for a thomsand beans being asked now, and even at this price very few lots are to be had.

Considering the high prices, and the very flattering Prospects in France, it is to be supposed that no ship ments will be made to this country, and if any should by effected, that they will be limited at high prices, and if such be not obtainable to be forwarded to France, where good quality was sold at $\frac{3}{2}$ a $\frac{1}{2}$ france, with probability of a further advance as soon as the news of the short crop was confirmed.

It is not the season now for jalap, which probably may fetch $\frac{3}{2}$ a $\frac{1}{2}$ for quintal.

City Intelligence. PUNERAL CEREMONIES ON SUNDAY.

FUNERAL OF JAMES HARRISON, Esq.—The funeral of the above named gentleman, who, as our readers will remember, was knocked down and run over by a stage, at the corner of Broadway and John street, on the 28th of February, and so severely injured that he died in consequence of the wounds, a few days ago, took place on Sunday, from the Northern Hotel, at the foot of Cortlandt street. The procession of carringes was one of the largest that has taken place in this city for some time. The cortege moved up Cortlandt street to Broadway, in the following order:

Four companies of cavalry.

Band, playing the "Dead March."

Carriages containing the friends of the deceased.

Hearse.

Carriages.

In this order the procession marched past the Herald effice to the Fulton ferry, where the military formed on each side of the carriages, until they crossed over to Brooklyn, which occupied as hour and a half. The military then returned home, and the funeral moved on to Greenwood, where the mortal remains of Mr. Harrison were deposited with the usual ceremonies. The deceased was a native of Ireland, and was one of the oldest hotel proprietors in this city. He was very much respected, and will be deeply mourned by his friends, of whom he had not a few.

The following gentlemen acted as pall bearers on the occasion. John Thompson, Stephen Wray, Alfred F. Lagrave, Charles Dennison, Dudley S. Gregory, James Van Ostrand, Masen Thompson, Philip Burrows, John Foster, James Robinson, John Paten, Sr., James McClare, A. B. Hays, D. S. Manners, Robert Gilchrist, Isaac Newton. The number of carriages that crossed the ferry was enumerated at one hundred and twenty.

The remnant of the New York Volunteers conducted to the grave their late brother in arms, William Burton, on Sunday. The procession started from the Mercer House, at 12 o'clock, in the following order:—

Guard of Escort.

Band playing the Dead March.

The Hearse, on each side of which marched the Volunteers, of the Volunteers.

Officers of the Volunteers.

Friends of the deceased.

In this order the funeral cortege moved down Broadway, to the South ferry, to Brooklyn, and from thence to Greenwood Cemetery, where the remains of the deceased were interred with all due military honors.

PRESENTATION OF PLATE TO Ms. GEORGE PECKHAM.—A large number of the friends of Mr. George Peckham, expresident of the Mercantile Library Association, assembled in the lodge room of Clinton Hall, on Saturday evening last, to witness the presentation to him of a magnificent service of plate, valued at a thousand dollars. The neeting was organized by the appointment of John Merchant, Esq., as chaiman, who made some brief and appropriate remarks. Mr. Ethan Allen was then introduced to the audience. He briefly reviewed the services and labors of the recipient, Mr. Peckham, during his official career, and attributed to his zeal and energy the present prosperous condition of the library. At the conclusion of his speech, which was reactived with repeated marks of approbation, Mr. Merchant presented the service, accompanying it with a brief are pertinent speech. Mr. Peckham, in reply, thanked the committee and the association for the mark of their estsem with which they had honored birn. When the usual formalities of presentation were over, about fifty of Mr. Peckham's friends adjourned to No. 600 Broadway, where an excellent supper was provided for them. The service consists of ten pieces of plate.

Fires.—At an early hour yesterday morning, a first broke out in the bakery of William Jelly, No. 486 Seventh avenue, corner of Thirty fifth street, which was not extinguished before property to the amount of $400 was eastroyed.

About 10 clock yesterday morning, a first word discovered in the frame dwelling house, No. 28 Madison street, and, before it could be extinguished the fiames spread to the adjoining houses, which were very much damaged. The first department, notwithstanding the lateness of the hour, were promptly on the spot, but, despite their exercisons, the fames spread rapidly before a stream of water could be brought to bear on the building.

About 8½ o'clock hast evening, the premises Ne. 37 West Broadway were directed to be on fire; but the fiames were quickly extinguished, before any material damage was effected.

The meeting was opened by the secretary making the call of the meeting both in English and German.

Mr. Sheridan then reported from the committee which had been appointed at the lass meeting, for the purpose had been appointed at the less meeting, for the purpose of inquiring among the men whether they were favorable to a strike or not. He said from what they had seen, and from all they could learn, they were certain that their wages would be raised, and that the greater par: of the workmen would be willing to join them in the strike. In their opinion, the best mode of getting their demands would be tedraw up a memorial, stating to their employers the necessity of raising their wages. Accordingly the committee had drawn up a petition, praying the employers, on account of the increase in house rent, and the high price of provisions, to raise their wages. They also drew up a scale of prices, which has been loft blank for the meeting to determine upon.

provisions, to raise their wages. They also drew up a scale of prices, which has been loft blank for the meeting to determine upon.

The report was then read in German, after which, Mr. Barnes then made a few remarks in reference to the object for which they had assumbled. All other trads had received higher wages; but the shoemasters had not, and the reason was because there was no unity among them. He then urged upon them the necessity of being united and combined, for without unity there was no strength. He concluded by saying that a deputation from Orange would address them.

The deputation from the town of Orange then made a few remarks in reference to the way in which they should act. The fact of the business rested with the workmen themselves, and to do this they amust be united and combined. It was true that they had achieved a great victory in Orange, but it was said that the bosses would retained upon them at another time. Therefore, to make themselves safe, they had appeinted delegates to confer with the different societies, from New York to Maine. He saw there, that evening, the sun that was to light them on to victory. They were joined heartily by the Germans, who contributed in one day the sum of $25 towards defraying the expenses of the seciety. They had delegated men to travel through the different manufacturing districts, there to organize with the boot and shoe makers of those towns. The jeeple of Orange looked to New York as their leader—they were willing to have this city for their sun, and all other towns as satellites to it.

Mr. Hedder, also a delegate from Orange, then rose and said, that if they wanted to succeed in New York they should be united. If they did not get an advance of wages in New York, the men in those towns in the vicinity would not be likely to get either; but if any of them did get it, it would not leadens of those towns in the vicinity would not ten the sun of setting the first of the mande of the speed of these towns in the vicinity would not ten the second of these o

An abstract of the speeches of those who were depu-tised from Orange was then read in the German language, tised from Orange was then read in the German language, to the German portion of the meeting.

Mr. McCarmy then roswand said, that he did not want to eccupy their time, but he had been urged to make a few remarks by a great many of his friends. He then weat on to say that the shoumakers were the worst paid men in the city. He knew men that worked eighteen hours per day and did not make more than seven pairs of boots in a fortnight, at the rate of $1.75 per pair Few peoplas are aware of the low condition of shoemakers. If they would only unite there would be no difficulty in obtaining such low wages was because the bootmakers did not unite and strike for a fair remuneration for their labor. They themselves were their own enemies. The tailor, it is said, makes the man, but who was it put the finish te that man? It was the shoemaker, who put the handsome boot on the Broadway dandy's foot. (Applause.)

Mr Krarss then said that the men in the following shops would strike for higher wages to day—Frank's, Watkins', Gluse's, Ready's, Rogers', and Underhill's.

A great number of persons then made short speeches, but none of them had a distinct bearing on the question, and therefore were altogether out of order. After some debate the meeting then drew up a scale of prices, to ge into operation next week.

Mr. FRANCIS E. BUTIER read the usual essay, taking for his subject thristian Beneficence. The author apolicized for the longth of the document, but when he came to treat the subject in a Scriptural point of view, has found so many texts crowding upon him, all inculcating the exercise of shristian charity, as being most acceptable to God, that he almost lamented its freetiy. The contents of the paper were heard with much attention.

Messrs. Dayneson, Whilams, and Coality, made remarks upon the subject of beneficence, both as regards the giving of alms and the affording of Scriptural callightemment to the poorer classes and their children.

The reports of the various committees were next in order.
